ACADEMIC TEACHING:

A) My Teaching Philosophy:

Teaching process, in my opinion, is a mutual process between the lecturer and students, so, it is important to give them a share in the teaching process, and motivate them for the following:

- Learning and thinking in critical analysis that help them developing their analytical skills.
- Acquiring skills that enable them to deal with practical and professional life.
- Embarking upon distinct scientific production, and trying to make the teaching process more enjoyable.
- Participating in short discussions to encourage them providing their opinions and recognizing their viewpoints about teaching subjects.

On my behalf, as a lecturer, I am trying to consider the following points as a part of my teaching philosophy:

- Illustrating the main principles in my teaching course in addition to some details of practical aspects of these points that support students in their practical life after that.
- Trying to make the learning process more enjoyable through joining the studying subjects with the current domestic and international events.
- The goal of tests and exams should be enhancing student's knowledge stock during the teaching period.
- Tests and exams should also aim to support and help students with low performance to increase their ability of learning.
- Using technical equipments that should be available in the educational institution especially those related with modern techniques.

B) My taught courses during the last period (2005 – up to now):
